Welcome

To Your Latest Catalogue!

The last year has seen significant developments in legal obligations and statutory guidance for UK Schools. Keeping schools safe and compliant for staff and pupils alike shouldn't be onerous or expensive, which is why this latest Eureka catalogue is full of affordable and attainable products for schools:

- School Allergy Policies are now required by law under the Children's Wellbeing and Schools Act 2026 – see page 127 for our NEW range of Allergen Safety Products for food areas
- 'Benedict's Law' makes Emergency Adrenaline Injectors, Inhalers, and Allergy Training standard expectations of allergy policies in schools – see pages 82-93 for our market-leading range
- 'Martyn's Law' is expected to be fully in force by April 2027, with schools in scope and DfE guidance issued on incident preparedness and response for educational settings – see pages 40-41
- Schools should be mobile-free by default, under the latest government guidance – pages 124 and 126 for simple products to help enforce your school's mobile phone policy
- British First Aid Standards update – burns first aid kits (page 66), eyewash kits (page 71) and defibrillators (pages 99-101) are now all included in BS8599 – the official standard for British workplace First Aid.

That's not all! This latest catalogue is also bursting with dozens more new products including Premium and Infographic Care Points (page 63), School Storage Trays (page 142), LifeVac Anti-Choking Devices (page 95), and the HeartHero portable defibrillator (page 101).

We don't just offer you the biggest range, we also provide the best value and service. We've kept bulk buy savings of up to 49% across dozens of the products schools use most. UK schools qualify for free instant credit, free delivery and a free box of biscuits on orders over £150.

For 26 years, over 15,000 UK Schools have trusted us for essential items, with 95% of our TrustPilot reviews 4 stars or better, so you can buy with confidence.

Placing your order is fast and easy. Order online at EurekaDirect.co.uk, call us on freephone 0800 358 0085, or email us at sales@eurekadirect.co.uk.

We look forward to hearing from you soon.

British First Aid Standards: New 2026 Update

British Standards offer guidance on what is considered adequate and reflect good practice. While not legally binding, following them helps demonstrate a responsible approach. Any defence in the event of a health and safety incident is significantly weakened if a standard exists but has been ignored.

Eyewash Kits

Now included in the amended standard wherever there has been a risk to eyes identified and BS8599-1 workplace kits are in place. 1 kit should be issued to first aiders and any personnel where appropriate to their role.

Pages 60 & 71

Burns Kits

Now included in the amended standard wherever there has been a high risk of burn injury. 1 kit should be issued to first aiders and any personnel where appropriate to their role.

Pages 60 & 66

As Low As
£44.95

AEC11937

Defibrillators

Should be easy to access and deploy within 2 minutes – larger premises with multiple buildings require more AEDs to ensure the safety of those on site. This applies to all premises with more than 5 employees.

Benedict's Law – New Allergy Safety Obligations In Your School

We Provide Easy and Affordable Ways To Meet NEW Statutory Guidance for Schools

Benedict's Law, alongside the Children's Wellbeing and Schools Act, strengthens allergy safety in schools and is now in force.

Following the tragic death of Benedict Blythe due to an avoidable allergic reaction at school, this new statutory guidance will better address the need for robust allergy awareness, management and emergency response, and will save lives.

As part of the new legislation, Schools are required to have an Allergy Policy, with spare adrenaline devices and training now expected practice in all schools under statutory guidance.

The risks are stark. 680,000 children in England live with allergies - around 2 per class. Approximately 43,000 cases of childhood allergies require care every year. 1 in 4 first time anaphylaxis attacks, and 1 in 5 fatal food-anaphylaxis cases occur in schools.

Since 2017, Eureka has supplied over 10,000 UK schools with products to treat anaphylaxis and allergic asthma, with our service rated as 'excellent'. Our market-leading ranges of products are easy to order and designed to meet the latest guidance whilst offering value, flexibility, and choice. Emergency provisions and allergy awareness shouldn't be a luxury. Our range enables your school to save lives, time and money with the right supplies, avoiding overpaying or overcommitting as guidance, requirements and policies change.

AAI Devices

Choose from Jext or EpiPen devices to replenish Anaphylaxis provisions. Always store in pairs of the same dose.

Emergency Asthma Provisions

Allergic reactions do not stop at anaphylaxis. Allergic asthma is an important part of the latest statutory guidance and emergency inhalers should be stored close to emergency AALs.

Important - Fully Compliant Instant Ice Packs

- All of our Koopak Instant Cold Packs are fully compliant with the Medical Devices Directive, unlike many other ice packs on the market
- To be used for therapeutic purposes, instant ice packs must be certified as class IIa medical devices and be accredited to ISO 9001 and ISO 13485. These standards are a requirement from the Medicines & Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency (MHRA)
- Other brands of ice pack without a CE mark and authority number are NOT compliant, potentially hazardous and not suitable for medical or therapeutic use

'Martyn's Law' Being Implemented

The Terrorism (Protection of Premises) Act 2025, known as Martyn's Law is now law, and expected to be in force from April 2027. Martyn's Law will mandate who is responsible for considering the risk from attacks, taking reasonable measures to prepare, respond, reduce harm and ultimately save lives, with severe penalties for non-compliance. As part of official preparedness guidance, ProtectUK strongly encourage all public and private sector organisations to "enhance first aid preparedness and response planning, so it takes into account the likely injuries which can be the result of a malicious event, such as a terrorist attack". Public Access Trauma (PACT) Kits have been designed expressly for this purpose and all organisations are recommended to have trauma kits on site within official guidance. Furthermore, under the existing Management of Health & Safety at Work Regulations 1999, all UK organisations must "establish and give effect to appropriate procedures to be followed in the event of serious and imminent danger."

ProtectUK recommend that “organisations should undertake an assessment to determine if the current first aid kit, such as workplace first aid kits, are adequate for the treatment of immediate life-threatening injuries”. Additionally, the Health and Safety Executive state that risk assessments must “consider the circumstances of your workplace, workforce and the hazards and risks that may be present.” No site operator ever regrets having adequate provision to manage critical injuries and save lives, even if outside of the scope of Martyn’s Law, with the Home Office advising that public attacks are becoming more unpredictable. Furthermore, under the existing Management of Health & Safety at Work Regulations 1999, all UK organisations must “Establish and give effect to appropriate procedures to be followed in the event of serious and imminent danger.”

BleedSave Trauma Cabinets With Bleed Control Kits
Outdoor cabinets designed to enhance emergency preparedness for mass casualty events or major incidents providing rapid access to supplies

ProtectUK recommend that “organisations should undertake an assessment to determine if the current first aid kit, such as workplace first aid kits, are adequate for the treatment of immediate life-threatening injuries”. Additionally, the Health and Safety Executive state that risk assessments must “consider the circumstances of your workplace, workforce and the hazards and risks that may be present.” No site operator ever regrets having adequate provision to manage critical injuries and save lives, even if outside of the scope of Martyn’s Law, with the Home Office advising that public attacks are becoming more unpredictable. Furthermore, under the existing Management of Health & Safety at Work Regulations 1999, all UK organisations must “Establish and give effect to appropriate procedures to be followed in the event of serious and imminent danger.”

Public Access Trauma (PACT) First Aid Kits
Created specifically to help members of the public save lives by treating major injuries in the event of an emergency

- Developed by experts across a number of fields, PAcT first aid kits are designed to be kept in public places for use in the event of major emergencies where everyday first aid supplies will not be sufficient
- Empowers and enables untrained bystanders to treat major bleed injuries, unresponsiveness and trauma until professional help arrives
- Kits contain heavy duty dressings, resuscitation shields and clear instructions for anyone to safely provide treatment, regardless of their level of training
- Sturdy green plastic cases are clearly marked with glow in the dark labelling for easy identification in low light, or choose NEW water-repellent soft cases
- Choose from kits with Tourniquets or Tourni-Keys (see page 37 for more information)

ProtectUK state that: “All public and private sector organisations are encouraged to include PAcT First Aid Kits within the first aid provisions they have in place.” A key consideration for Martyn’s Law compliance, which is now law.

The Terrorism (Protection of Premises) Act 2025, known as Martyn’s Law, is now law, and expected to be in force by April 2027. It requires organisations to take reasonable measures to prepare, respond, and reduce harm in the event of a terror attack, and will apply to education settings.

Schools have their own guidance for major incident preparedness. We have developed straightforward products to expressly meet this guidance. The latest Department of Education (DfE) guidance recommends that education settings consider compiling grab kits as part of their incident response plans. Kits should include equipment that may be required during an emergency such as “communications equipment, useful information, and Public Access Trauma first aid kits.” Clear roles for protective security and preparedness, including Security and Incident Leads, are also recommended.

School Incident Grab Kit

Official Department for Education (DfE) guidance recommends that education settings “should consider compiling a grab kit comprising of key items that can assist during an incident”

- Demonstrate your commitment to protect those in your care by taking practical measures to be prepared for terrorist attacks and other major incidents
- Includes essential items that may be required during an emergency, such as a Public Access Trauma (PACT) Kit and 2 x Hi-Vis vests to identify key personnel
- Supplied PACT Kit comes with heavy-duty contents that meet official standards developed by experts, approved by the Home Office and counter-terrorism bodies (see page 40 for more details)
- Choose from 3 high quality bag options. All are extremely easy to transport and have multiple additional pouches and pockets to add your school’s plans, contact details, communication equipment, checklists, emergency medication and other essentials
- Choose from complete grab kits containing PACT Kits and 2 x Hi-Vis Vests, or empty bags pre-printed with ‘Incident Grab Kit’ for creating your own grab kit
- Complete kits are supplied with sign to ensure ease of location in an emergency

British Workplace First Aid Standards Have Been Updated

BS8599 is the British Standard for workplace first aid. British Standards are not legislation, but they reflect recognised good practice towards providing ‘adequate and appropriate first aid’ as per Health and Safety Law. Following the latest guidance can help organisations demonstrate that they have taken reasonable steps to provide suitable first aid cover based on workplace risk, site size and the people present on site. Where guidance exists in a British Standard but has not been followed, it could weaken any defence in the event of workplace accident or claim. With the 2026 amendments to BS8599 now live, organisations should review their first aid risk assessments, check the location and suitability of their first aid equipment, and update supplies where needed to remain aligned with the latest British Standards.

The HSE state that companies should consider having one or more first aid rooms depending on the number employees or pupils, in order to provide adequate first aid provision. This is especially important for any workplace where higher risk activities may take place. First Aid rooms should also be appropriately sign posted with signs compliant to Health and Safety Regulations so they can be quickly and easily identified.

AAI Wall Points

Comply with the Department of Health’s guidance, which states that “AAIs must be kept in a safe and suitably central location accessible to all staff at all times but out of the reach of children.”

- Create an easy to identify, highly visible and accessible point to ensure your AAI Kit is “available for use at all times” in your school
- Emergency devices must not be locked away, but be kept out of reach of children whilst remaining accessible in an emergency, points are an excellent way of meeting official guidance
- Save essential time in severe anaphylaxis emergencies, this all-in-one solution will help avoid delays in administering adrenaline to prevent fatal outcomes
- Supplied with tamper ties, providing an added layer of security to deter vandalism while remaining easy to release in an emergency
- Add individual devices to starter packs (page 85) as needed, to store emergency devices in pairs as per the latest guidance

CHOOSING EMERGENCY ADRENALINE INJECTORS FOR YOUR SCHOOL

Spare AAIs for emergency use are an expectation of school allergy policies, which are now a legal requirement for schools. Both EpiPen and Jext branded AAIs are equally appropriate for use in schools and free device familiarisation training is provided by the manufacturers.

We aim to make storing spare AAIs as flexible and cost-effective as possible for schools, to avoid overpaying for devices which are not needed, or overcommitting as policies, guidance and products evolve. Our range includes everything from individual AAI devices (below), to our market leading Anaphylaxis Kits (pages 84-86), Care Stations (page 87) and Allergy Safety Stations (page 89).

Jext Adrenaline Auto Injectors

Each Jext device injects a pre-measured single dose of adrenaline for the emergency treatment of anaphylaxis

- Needle is contained within the Jext before use and is automatically covered by the black needle shield after use
- When you push Jext firmly against the thigh, a spring activated plunger will be released, which pushes the hidden needle through the seal and the end of the black needle shield
- Available in 150mcg and 300mcg doses
- Buy individual devices as necessary to add to anaphylaxis kits or storage options (see page 84) – ideal for staying dynamic with emergency plans without overspending or overcommitting
- Fast, free delivery in temperature controlled packaging
- Always store in pairs of the same dose
- Easy ordering using the AAI form online at EurekaDirect.co.uk, or via email, or by calling us on 0800 358 0085

Anaphylaxis Emergency Care Station

High-visibility anaphylaxis emergency care station made from durable aluminium composite, featuring bold 'ABC' guidance to help quickly recognise symptoms and follow response steps

Guidance on school AAIs states that 'AAIs must be kept in a safe and suitably central location accessible to all staff at all times but out of the reach of children. They must not be locked away in a restricted cupboard or office and should be located no more than five minutes away from where they may be needed.'

- Provides clear visual guidance to help staff recognise anaphylaxis warning signs (ABC – Airway, Breathing and Consciousness) and take the correct action in an emergency
- Create a centralised focal point for storing and locating emergency anaphylaxis supplies
- Supplied with choice of 150mcg or 300mcg AAIs select the appropriate dosage based on age requirements (not to be mixed with prescribed personal medication). Please see EurekaDirect.co.uk for all dosage options available.
- Highly visible and easy to identify, with a bold print for fast recognition in busy environments
- Ensure your AAI kit is 'available for use at all times' in your school, giving staff and visitors confidence to respond quickly to emergencies
- Check AAI expiry dates with supplied inspection tags to support monthly checks in line with Department of Health guidance that staff should confirm "on a monthly basis the AAIs are present and in date."
- Flexible refill options - purchase individual AAI devices separately, with typical expiry dates of 9-18 months (page 85)
- Missing kit warning panel highlights when supplies are missing and how to re-order replacements

EMERGENCY ALLERGY SAFETY STATION

Emergency Allergy provision does not stop at anaphylaxis.

Emergency Allergy Safety Station – Anaphylaxis and Asthma Care

Emergency Allergy provision does not stop at anaphylaxis. Combine your emergency Anaphylaxis and Asthma kits for a comprehensive emergency allergy response and make a saving over buying separately. Ideal for installing near areas where food is consumed.

As part of statutory guidance for schools, allergic asthma is highlighted as a consideration beyond only anaphylaxis. Additionally, existing DHSC guidance recommends that schools consider holding emergency provisions for Anaphylaxis and Asthma together. Asthma is an additional reaction which may require treatment with a personal or emergency inhaler as a result of an allergic reaction, and is common among those with known severe allergies. Tragically, over a recent 4 year period, the National Child Mortality Database Report on Asthma and Anaphylaxis notes that all of the children who sadly died from anaphylaxis and had known allergies, were also diagnosed with asthma.

Anaphylaxis Kit Contents

Supplied with a fully stocked Anaphylaxis Kit - choose from 2 or 4 AAIs to suit your premises and budget, with the flexibility to reduce or add to your kits as you see fit. Select the correct dosage based on age requirements (not to be mixed with prescribed personal medication). See below right to identify the correct dosage.

- Designed to support proposed Department for Education (DfE) guidance recommending that 'schools keep emergency asthma reliever inhalers alongside "spare" adrenaline devices'
- All-in-one emergency response point for safe storage and rapid access of AAIs and asthma inhaler kits during anaphylactic and asthma emergencies
- Ensures fast, reliable access to life-saving medication in emergencies, helping staff respond quickly and confidently
- Provides on-site access to spare AAI devices – studies estimate that 40-50% of allergy sufferers do not regularly carry their AAI device – holding backup or emergency devices can save lives
- Clearly labelled 'Emergency Allergy Safety' station with additional FREE signage to identify anaphylaxis kit locations

Emergency Asthma Inhalers ⚠️

Allergy Safety does not stop at anaphylaxis. Allergic asthma is significantly more common and is closely linked with anaphylaxis. As such, new statutory guidance for schools recommends that allergy safety measures incorporate both emergency anaphylaxis provisions (adrenaline devices) and emergency inhalers for treating allergic asthma.

Tragically, over a recent 4 year period, the National Child Mortality Database Report on Asthma and Anaphylaxis notes that all of the children who sadly died from anaphylaxis and had known allergies, were also diagnosed with asthma.

Head Teachers are authorised to purchase emergency stores of inhalers as backups should a pupils device be lost, broken or mislaid. Ordering just got even easier! You can now order an inhaler, or any product that contains an inhaler online at EurekaDirect.co.uk.

Schools in England are now expected to implement government statutory guidance on mobile phones, which states that schools should be mobile phone-free environments by default. The guidance expects schools to have a clear policy prohibiting pupils from accessing mobile phones and similar smart devices throughout the school day, including during lessons, breaktimes and lunchtime, while ensuring the policy is communicated clearly and enforced consistently. Practical storage and management solutions, as well as measures to increase awareness of restricted or prohibited use, can help schools implement these expectations effectively

CRITICAL FOOD ALLERGEN INFORMATION

NEW

Up to 80% of anaphylaxis cases in children are caused by food. Poor food separation processes, allergen labelling and allergy awareness have proven fatal in schools.

Schools in England must strengthen their approach to allergy management as part of the Department for Education's new statutory allergy guidance linked to the introduction of Benedict's Law. Schools should have clear procedures for identifying and managing allergens, reducing the risk of cross-contamination, providing accurate food information where appropriate, and raising allergy awareness among staff and pupils. Clear signs, labels and posters play an important role in supporting these procedures, helping to create a safer environment wherever food is prepared, served or consumed. Visit EurekaDirect.co.uk for the full range.

- Gripper backing minimises movement on all surfaces and actually raises mat off the floor to allow drying underneath when newly mopped
- Extremely tough solid rubber borders – a great plus in schools
- Choose from 4 colours (please specify when ordering)
